PREFACE

This, the fifth volume of the Document Catalogue (Comprehensive Index), includes all documents and reports submitted to Congress March 4, 1899, to March 4, 1901, without regard to the time when they were printed; and in addition thereto all publications of the Executive Departments, bureaus, and offices of the Government, issued during the two fiscal years—July 1, 1899, to June 30, 1901.

In this volume and hereafter, entries for reports on private and public bills will be found in full only under the names of the individual claimants and subjects, and to these subject entries will be found cross references from the Members making the reports, and also from the committees from which the reports emanate. This method of entry, which has been in use in the last two catalogues for reports on private bills, has been adopted for reports on public bills also, on account of the ever-increasing bulk of the Document Catalogue.

Serial numbers have been added to all analyticals from the Congressional Reserve and will be found in black-face type at the end of the entries.

At the end of this volume, as in previous numbers, will be found, arranged in a single alphabet, a list of Government authors consisting of those Departments, bureaus, and offices of the United States Government which are represented by entries in this number of the Document Catalogue. In addition to this, the same material is arranged in another list by Executive Departments, independent offices, etc., with alphabetical lists of subordinate bureaus and offices under each. In these arrangements will be found also alphabetical lists of the Senate and House Committees that submitted reports during this Congress.

It has been customary in the Document Catalogues to include in the same catalogue entries for a certain volume and for all "separates" therefrom, no matter if the "separates" and the volume of which they form parts were published in periods that are covered by different catalogues. This treatment is adopted in order to avoid, when possible, entering the same matter in two catalogues.

For the benefit of readers who may not have at hand the previous volumes of the Document Catalogue, the following statements are made relative to the style of expressing titles of documents or reports. When a document has a title-page or a distinctive heading, the wording of the catalogue entry follows exactly the order of words contained therein. Words are omitted without indicating the omission in any way; but if insertions are made, or the order of words altered, such changes are indicated by brackets. Committee reports have no titles, and for these reports the catalogue entry follows a conventional wording incorporating the distinctive title of the bill or joint resolution on which the report is made. Simple and concurrent resolutions have no titles, therefore catalogue entries for reports on them are made up so as to give the subject-matter of the report. When a title is amended in committee, the amended title is chosen. A conventional wording is used for titles of pension reports and a few others.

The date used in entries for Congressional documents, if year, month, and day are specified, refers to the date when the document was ordered printed; but if the year only is specified it refers to the time of publication. Unless otherwise indicated, annual reports are designated by fiscal years, which always end with June 30 of each calendar year. The date of the fiscal year covered by an annual report is followed by the date of publication when the two dates are not the same; if they are the same, the date of publication is omitted. In citing an annual report the fiscal year covered by the report is used, and not the year of publication.

This catalogue was compiled under the direction of Miss Alice C. Fichtenkam, chief cataloguer.

L. C. FERRELL,
Superintendent of Documents.

Bills.

Note.—Bills and resolutions, simple, concurrent, and joint, are not catalogued directly, except in the rare cases where a special edition is printed for general distribution. The catalogue entries for the committee reports on them embody the exact title of the bill, and serve as complete substitutes for cataloguing the bills themselves. The following directions refer to these report entries as equivalent to bill entries. Considering bills and resolutions in 4 classes, class 1 are the large number which are presented to Congress, but on which no committee report is made, and which do not become law. Class 2 are the very few on which no committee reports, but which become law notwithstanding. Class 3 are those on which a committee reports but which fail to pass. Class 4 are those on which a committee reports and which become law thereafter. For class 1 consult the index of the Congressional Record. Classes 2, 3, and 4 can be found under the subject of the bill, and, by reference, under the Committee and the Senator or Representative making the report. Classes 2 and 4 have appended to the entries the pages in the Statutes at Large where the text of the bill passed into law can be found.
